What did the average East German Family do about holidays before the collapse of the Berlin wall? With only the faithful Trabant to transport the GDR citizens, any caravan had to be small and lightweight!!!

Enter the WERFERLINGER LT9 200 made in the small town of Werferlingen. The unit is constructed entirely of wood weighs in at just 220kgs with alloy wheels. I didn't find out what the chassis was made of, but it is certainly compact. The caravan belongs to our foreign correspondent. He used to tow it behind his Lloyd and as you can see now tows it behind his recently acquired (English) Bond Minicar (250cc 2 stroke Villiers engine). I think he keeps sending me these photos to make me jealous.

Left - OEK Junior (340kg)
Right - Werferlingen LT9 200

LC 9 - 200

Happy camping.
